Court upholds law on bank reporting

(WASHINGTON P) — The Supreme Court today upheld a controversial federal law requiring broad scale reporting by all citizens of financial transactions.

Critics call the law a massive invasion of constitutional rights, claiming it is unnecessary to fight increasingly sophisticated tax evasion schemes.

The court's decision was handed down after a 6-3 vote, with a dissent from Justice Brandeis stating that the act was written to give government access to information that would be used for purposes other than those intended when the Bank Secrecy Act described as "information useful in criminal, tax or regulatory investigations or proceedings."

Under the act and regulation of the U.S. Treasury Department, banks are required to file reports with the Internal Revenue Service on transactions exceeding $10,000.

A three-judge court in California had approved the extensive reporting requirements last year, but the government has been unable to get the country to be reported.

Orme named chairman

Dr. Leon E. Orme, professor of animal science at BYU, has been named chairman of the BYU Department of Animal Science, replacing Dr. R. Phil Shumway who has served in that position for 12 years.

The changeover, which will take place June 1, is in accordance with the university's policy of rotating chairmanships among faculty members, according to Dr. Max V. Wallentine, assistant dean of the College of Biological and Agricultural Sciences.

Dr. Shumway has served an unusually long time and has played a key role in the tremendous growth in faculty, facilities and programs which has taken place in the department over the last decade, Dr. Wallentine said.

He will return to teaching and research at BYU after completing his sabbatical at the University of Minnesota during spring term. Dr. Shumway was born at BYU in 1925.

Dr. Orme was born in Provo and resided in Tooele. He obtained his bachelor's degree from Utah State University, his master's from the University of Tennessee at Knoxville and his doctorate from the University of Michigan State University.

He taught at the University of Tennessee and at the University of Idaho before joining the BYU faculty in 1969. While at the University of Idaho, Dr. Orme received the Outstanding Teacher in Agriculture Award and served as faculty adviser to Alpha Zeta, Block and Bridle and Sigma Xi.

The professor was active in extension work throughout Idaho and has coached prize winning meat judging teams at the University of Idaho and BYU.

Dr. Orme is a former president of the Western Section of the American Society of Animal Science and is currently secretary of the Utah State Growers Association.

He and his wife, Mary Anne Maxfield Orme, have five children.

Both Dr. Orme and Dr. Shumway are residents of Orem.

Dr. Leon E. Orme has been named chairman of the Department of Animal Science.

BYU men honored by association

Five BYU faculty members were installed as Fellows of the Utah Academy of Sciences, Arts and Letters Friday night.

Installed for meritorious research in science, the arts, or letters were Dr. Lorin Wheelwright, BYU Centennial director and former College of Fine Arts and Communications dean, Dr. Lane Crompton, professor and assistant director of research in physical science education, and Dr. John Gardner, professor of physics.

Dr. Harold L. Hansen, professor of dramatic arts, and Dr. Reed M. Izatt, professor of chemistry, were also installed as members of the Academy.

The annual Academy meeting, this year held at BYU, recognized the professors for creative and original work in their individual fields.

The academy, comprising leading Utah scholars, also presented Dr. Armin J. Hill, BYU College of Engineering and Technology dean, the Distinguished Service Award for his contributions in the academy of dramatic arts, and Dr. Reed M. Izatt, professor of chemistry, were also installed as members of the Academy.

A special feature of the Academy's conference was Dr. John Gardner's lecture on "Fusion Power, Its Origin and Domestication."

Dr. Gardner heads a team of BYU scientists who, have apparently made significant advances in designing a controlled fusion reactor.

Former Y dean dies of cancer

Dr. Clarence Cottam, 75, former dean of the College of Biological and Agricultural Science at BYU and one of the most honored biologists in America, died Saturday, March 30, in Sinton, Tex., of cancer, according to word received at BYU Monday.

He was former president of Corpus Christi (Tex.) State.

Dr. Cottam taught at BYU from 1925 to 1929 and was dean from 1929 to 1938. He left the Provo school to become director of the Rob and Bessie Welder Wildlife Foundation in Sinton, Tex.

Dr. Cottam was born in St. George, Utah, Jan. 1, 1899, a son of Thomas P. and Emmaline Jarvis Cottam. He married a BYU schoolmate, Margery Brown, and they were parents of four daughters.

Dr. Cottam attended Dixie College and University of Utah before receiving the bachelor's degree in 1926 and the master's degree in 1927 at BYU and the Ph.D. in 1926 at George Washington University.

He served with the U.S. Biological Survey (later the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service) in Washington, D.C., from 1929 to 1934, holding positions at various times as principal biologist, assistant to the director, chief of the division of wildlife research, and assistant director.

His assignments took him to every state in the nation, most of the Canadian provinces, Mexico and New Zealand. He published more than 250 articles and chapters in books. His influence on wildlife studies and conservation has been recognized by most ornithological societies in America, and many academics and scientific groups have bestowed upon him their highest honors.

Among these have been the coveted Audubon Medal, BYU Distinguished Alumni Award and James E. Talmage Scientific Achievement Award, Leopold Wildlife Award and Medal, Pooge Conservation Award, Paul Hartz Award of the Natural Life Society, Wildlife Conservation Award of Southern Texas, Distinguished Award of Sinton, Texas, fellow in the American Ornithological Union and National Academy of Science, Department of Interior Conservation Award.

RATON, N.M. (AP) — National Rifle Assn. directors recently approved a northeastern New Mexico site for a proposed multimillion dollar "outdoor home for the American shooter."

The 30,000 acres of land is near the ghost town of Van Houten, which is near Raton. NRA Executive Vice President Maxwell E. Rich said the organization plans to spend $15 million to $20 million by 1983 in developing the center.

The site is to include a complex of shooting ranges, recreational facilities, hotel-motel and a center for wildlife and conservation research.

Rich said the national center eventually would be able to accommodate 2,500 overnight guests, including those in campers and trailers.

Sign-up set today for Universe meet

Those wishing to participate in the second annual Daily Universe Three-man Basketball Tournament may sign up for competition beginning today.

Sign-up sheets will be available at the Daily Universe office in 538 ELWC. Tournament hopefuls must have the names of all three members of each team in order to apply, and should have ready the $10 entrance fee.

All proceeds after expenses will go to the BYU Library Fund.

Due to the unpredictability of spring weather, tournament play has been rescheduled for April 12 and will be inside the Richards Building. Scheduled game times will be from 6-10 p.m., and participants should allow the entire evening for the tourney.

"We are anxious for many teams to enter, not only for the fun of competition, but also to help the Library Fund," said tournament Director, Deanne Nagle.

Trophies will be given each member of the winning teams in each of three categories: six-foot and under, unlimited and coed. Coed teams must have at least one girl on each squad.

Trophies will also be awarded the most valuable player in each category.

Boyle trial statements presented

MEDIA, Pa. (AP) — The special prosecutor in the murder trial of former United Mine Workers Union President W. A. "Tony" Boyle said Monday the assassination of Boyle's union rival was financed by the "sweat and blood of miners."

Special Prosecutor Richard Sprague said Boyle "plotted and paid $10 million" of Joseph A. "Jack" Yablonski, his wife and 25-year-old daughter in an election for the UMW presidency.

Both sides presented opening statements to a jury of nine men and three women in a nearly full courtroom. Delaware County Common Pleas Court Judge Francis Catania presided over the case.

The Yablonskis were shot to death at their Clarksville, Pa., home on Dec. 31, 1969, three weeks after Boyle defeated Yablonski in an election for the UMW presidency.

Sprague used a huge map showing six coal-mining states and Washington, D.C., to trace events beginning in June, 1969, when he said Boyle ordered Yablonski killed.

The prosecutor said Boyle's order came less than a month after Yablonski announced his candidacy on May 29, 1969.

"He signed his own death warrant by challenging Boyle's UMW leadership," he said.

The tournament will be played on half courts, with the first team to reach 30 points being declared the winner of each game. ABA rules will apply to the tournament, which will permit dunking and three-point bombs.

Teams may seek sponsors to help cover the $10 entrance fee.

Dr. Jones said the city commission will have two or three alternatives to choose from, all of which would be willing to support.

The noise ordinance states noise levels in public places should remain below 95 decibels but does not specify a time period for measurement.

The first revision of the ordinance was proposed last fall and required that noise in public places not exceed 95 decibels for more than 30 seconds.

The revision was opposed mainly by sponsors and participants of rock dances. If passed, the ordinance would prohibit rock bands from playing in many public places in Provo, according to Jay Green, owner of Top Drawer.

He said the 95 decibel limit proposed is not practical for bands performing in halls of any size.

A petition with 836 signatures protesting the ordinance was presented at a public hearing. The "group of concerned citizens" presenting the petition objected only to the ordinance.

Swimmers to present pool show

"Different Strokes for Different Folks" is the title for this year's BYU Water Show to take place April 4, 5, and 6 at 7:30 in the Richards Building Pool.

The show will include a duet and solos by Diana Nielson and Raylene Smith, who have recently completed a swimming tour in Thailand. According to Gary Hopkinson, technical director of the Physical Education Department, the show will also feature a fine double, mixed quartet, diving and clown diving.

The annual event is directed by Betty Vickers, former National Synchronized Swimming solo champion, Pan American Games Champion and All American. She now lives in Orem.

In synchronized swimming swimmers perform routines displaying various stunts and techniques. The routines are performed to music.

Besides the above-mentioned girls, Vicki Bishop, Diana Johnson, Linda Turner, LuAnn Mach, Chris Baggis and Valerie Van Leeuwen have, as a team, accumulated a 40-0 intercollegiate synchronized swimming competitive record in the Intermountain League.

The diving will be performed by BYU's varsity men's and women's teams.

Veteran Act spurs growth

The Veterans Health Care Expansion Act of 1973 has spurred the growth of a major program for the recruitment, training and employment of veterans with medical military specialties.

Emphasis is being placed on acquiring medically trained veterans and soon-to-be discharged servicemen with this opportunity, announced Donald E. Johnson, administrator of Veterans Affairs.

The result of this program has been the upgrading of medical care for hospitalized members and outpatient treatment. More than one million patients, the highest number in history, will be cared for in VA hospitals this year.

Employment opportunities are outlined in a new pamphlet now being distributed by the VA.

Student apathy is a problem for Red Cross blood drive

Student apathy toward the blood drive is causing the Red Cross to fall behind its quota, according to Central Utah Red Cross Chapter Manager Dallis Christensen.

The 600-unit goal requires about 150 units to be drawn each day through Thursday, he said. "We are falling way behind the first day."

Christensen stressed that the drive is "a participation rather than a donation." BYU students are entitled to receive blood from any participating hospital as a result of this program, whether or not they have donated personally.

A donor card will be given to participating students which entitles them to receive Red Cross blood all of their lives from any participating hospital in the U.S.

"We are not interested in getting blood from anyone unless we can say, 'Here, you get it back,' when they need it," Christensen added.

Students wishing to give blood should go to the mezzanine above the ballroom on the third floor, ELWC, sometime between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. through Thursday. Donors must be at least 18 years old and weigh 110 lbs.

All precautions are taken for good health. "We want this to be a pleasant experience," Christensen pointed out. In a recent drive at Utah State, with an enrollment of about 10,000, they averaged about 200 units a day, said Christensen.

Christensen lists the reasons for the lack of interest as out-of-focus location of drive and the lack of publicity. Christensen added, "Many lives this blood will save. We do know we will do a lot of good."

Brian Moser's film, "The Last of the Cuiva," will be shown on "Nova" tonight at 8 on KBYU Channel 11.

The British producer learned of the murder of 18 Cuiva Indians while he was working on another film in South America. According to the newspaper release, the Indians had been invited by white cattle ranchers to a celebration and then mercilessly shot down.

Moser went to live as an Indian among the Cuiva and find out what was happening. He found a camera crew that was willing to live the life of primitive tribes, sleeping in string hammocks, wading waist-deep through jungle streams with camera equipment on their backs, paddling dugout canoes and shooting snakes. They were there for a whole year.

"One story our film does not tell is how we trailed for miles through insect-infested mosquito-ridden jungle swamps, with tarantula spiders and vampire bats swooping on us at night. Once we ran out of food. Even the Indians had nothing. They caught flying ants and fried them and they tasted rather like bacon, with a dash of pepper and a squeeze of lemon," commented Moser.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A threatened boycott of the Emmy Awards by an estimated 160 stars, writers, directors and producers may be averted by the latest action of the trustees of the Television Academy.

The 30-member trustees board voted late Saturday night to restore the Emmy for all winners in the performing, writing and directing categories—a decision which will result in the awarding of more Emmys than ever.

The idea of a revised awards structure announced Feb. 12 by the academy was to reduce the number of Emmys to 75 and thereby produce a better awards show. About 215 Emmys were presented last year.

The new structure would single out winners in the creative arts in a manner similar to years past, with acting, directing and writing awards given in the categories of comedy, drama and specials.

But, unlike past years, these winners would get only a distinguished award, not an Emmy.

From among them, however, would be chosen an actor, actress, supporting actor, supporting actress, director and writer "of the year," who all would get Emmys.

NEW YORK (AP) — "QB VII," a made-for-television movie based on Leon Uris' best-selling novel of the same name, will be with us for quite a while on ABC—the network says 6½ hours in all—April 29 and 30.

Although record-setting wasn't what producer Douglas Cramer had in mind, he says it's the longest made-for-TV film ever aired, exceeding even NBC's four-part "Blue Knight" miniseries.

Cramer, 42, who struck some kind of blow for candor by saying the show actually runs five hours and 20 minutes without commercials, titles and station breaks, said ABC never set any time limit for the movie.

The simple reason it's as long as it is, he said, is because Barry Diller, an ABC executive who commissioned it, felt that "a great many books have been ruined by being compressed arbitrarily for two or three hours of screen time." And Diller wanted to right this wrong.

Oratorio called spiritual impact

By VERN ANDERSON
Universe Staff Writer

The difference between the roles of observer and participant was never more apparent than to many who attended the premier of Dr. Merrill Bradshaw's oratorio, "The Restoration," dedicated to the late Pres. Harold B. Lee. Confronted with a work that is above all profoundly moving in its spiritual impact, one is almost overwhelmed by a sense of gratitude toward an artist who will allow, or insist on monumental audience participation in so personal and heartfelt a work.

The music is good, some of it among the finest that Dr. Bradshaw has produced. But the technical quality of the work itself, and in some ways the superb production, are ultimately overshadowed by the intimate spiritual communion of artist with audience.

There are four instances in the body of the oratorio where the audience is called on to participate. The prelude to the work, which consists of six well-known LDS hymns, is sung entirely by the audience. The net effect of the above is to allow the predominantly LDS audience to identify with, to feel a physical part of Bradshaw's theme.

Nowhere is this more effectively or daringly accomplished than in the closing chorus, "Great and Marvelous are Thy Works," a Finale every bit as climactic as Handel's "Amen" chorus from "Messiah."

Particularly impressive, too, is the frequent harmony between Dr. Bradshaw's music and his text, taken in part from three of the four works which make up the LDS canon of scripture and including five prayers of Dr. Bradshaw's own composition. Examples of this textual harmony include the dissonant, apocalyptic "I Saw Another Angel," from the Book of Revelations, and the prayers "Ode to Joseph" and "Prayer No. 1."

In its music "The Restoration" is unabashedly eclectic, blending simple church hymns with quasi-Gregorian chants, upbeat rhythms with classical styles, modern impressionistic to straight choral music. Perhaps it is for this reason that, despite the apparent unity of theme, "The Restoration" as an oratorio in any traditional sense is more imposing in its chameleon parts than as an organic whole.

Especially memorable in this regard was the stirring, full-throated acclamation of the "Introduction," the powerful "I Saw Another Angel." "Fantasy: For God Remembers Still" as one of the examples of audience participation, and again, "Great and Marvelous are Thy Works."

The authoritative direction of the masses of participants by Dr. John K. Halliday was a logistic marvel. The Oratorio Choir, always strong and accomplished, even in the two difficult fugues, by BYU Philharmonic Orchestra, the A Cappella Choir and the University Chorus all performed with admirable skill. Even the audience, whose contribution might have proven less than inspiring, was better than adequate—owing, no doubt, to the stalwart backing of the 400-odd member Choral interspersed throughout the concert hall, and even to the unstinting efforts of countless ward and branch choir directors. To each his due.

BYU Symphony Orchestra

Spring concert tonight

Director, Lawrence Sardon, and pianist, Tricia Thomas, examine Mozart's Piano Concerto.

The BYU Symphony Orchestra will present its annual spring concert on Tuesday at 9 p.m. in the de Jong Concert Hall. Highlighting the concert will be two winners of the annual concerto auditions.

Tricia Thomas, a graduate in piano performance, from Salt Lake City, will perform the Mozart Piano Concerto in D minor. As a winner of the Salute to Youth contest, Miss Thomas has appeared with the Utah Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Maurice Abravanel.

Cheryl Ransom, percussionist from Spokane, Wash., will perform as soloist in "Kantasia on Japanese Woodprints," for xylophone and orchestra by Alan Hovavnes.

Lawrence Sardon will conduct the orchestra in the Riezi Overture by Richard Wagner and in Anton Dvorak's New World Symphony.

Public admission tickets are $1.00 and can be obtained at the door that evening. Students, faculty and staff are admitted by presenting a current BYU activity card at the door.

Team tries for repeat of a TV hit

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Producer Roy Huggins and James Garner, who teamed up in 1957 to give the nation the tongue-in-cheek "Maverick" series, are at loose again with a new show they also hope becomes a hit series.

Technically a pilot for a proposed series, "The Rockford Files," is a private eye show that sort of winked now and then.

A "Maverick" it ain't, but it may work, even though it was the sort of whodunit that raised initial hopes with a brisk strangling, then seemed to take forever before the traditional Great Chase got under way.

Garner played a gunslinger who, as it turns out, has done five years behind bars for an armed robbery he didn't commit. He now tries to solve cases, police list as "unsolved-inactive."

Into his life steps a comely young lady Lindsay Wagner who wants him to find out who killed her widowed father, a wino we saw done in at the start of the show. The murder is in the "unsolved" category.

Show questions reading interest

"American Dialogue" will question how parents can help their children get interested in reading, tonight at 9 on KBYU Channel 11.

Viewers may call in questions to the panel members.

The show commemorates "Week of the Young Child" nationally, along with National Library Week.

Panel members will concentrate on methods of developing reading skills in children and creating a genuine interest in reading.

Panelists include Rowen Jones, an early childhood specialist; Helen Eastmond, a children's book specialist; Vermont Harward, a reading coordinator with Provo schools; and Delva Daines, a reading specialist involved in teacher training.

Trio concert to feature violin, flute, harpsichord

Violin, flute and harpsichord will be played by three accomplished young musicians in a "Music by Three" concert Wednesday at 8 p.m. in the de Jong Concert Hall.

The concert, part of the BYU-Community Concert Series, will feature three young women in combination of solo, duet and full trio performances.

Violinist for the concert is Ani Kavafian, who received her master's degree from Juilliard School of Music. She has won the National Federation of Music Clubs Award, the Concert Artists Guild Award, Hudson Valley Philharmonic Competition and Young Artists International Auditions.

Miss Karafian has appeared as soloist with the Detroit, Boston, Dallas and National Symphony Orchestras. This year she is scheduled to play in the Great Performers Series at Lincoln Center, New York and the Festival of Two Worlds in Sals, Italy.

Flutist in the trio is Eugenia Zukerman, who made her New York debut in the Young Concert Artists Series in Town Hall in 1971. Since then she has concentrated widely as soloist in chamber music, and has recorded for Columbia Masterworks.

A graduate of Juilliard, she has played in the Festival of Two Worlds for three summers as well as a number of other festivals.

Elaine Compagnone, the harpsichordist, studied at Brandeis University and on a Fulbright grant with European harpsichordist Isidore Ahlgrim in Vienna, performed her New York recital debut in 1970.

Miss Compagnone performed with the New York Baroque Ensemble, Han Society Orchestra and D'Ariel Trio, which founded.

Lobo coach may relent in suspension of blacks

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) University of New Mexico football Coach Bill Mondt, polishing his first team as the Lobos' head mentor, has indicated he might take back his boycotting of black players.

Mondt said during the weekend that if the boycott didn't last too long, provisions possibly could be made for the players to make up the practices missed.

He had said earlier, however, that the boycotting players "as of now... are no longer on the football team. We only have so many days in which to complete our spring drills, and there is no way we can make up missed days."

Mondt said Friday, "The people that show up for practice will do the playing next fall. It wouldn't be fair any other way. Besides, you can't win with people that don't want to play anyway."

Of the 19 Negro players on the football squad, 14 boycotted Friday's practice in a protest against the dropping of a black freshman, Paul Shelton, from the baseball team.

Some athletes at the university indicated there might be a break today in the boycott.

Several boycotting and non-boycotting members of the football team said some of the boycotting players may try to rejoin the team.

After Saturday's practice, the third of the 20-session spring workouts, Mondt said he was pleased with "the effort and concentration by the squad—we've got a good bunch of people."

Mondt said he and his staff hadn't had a chance to make position changes for Saturday's scrimmage after the 14 blacks failed to show for practice Friday.

He said he expected two black players excused from practice Friday and Saturday to return today. They are Greg Jones and Mike Foster. Three other blacks not participating in the boycott are Curtis Akins, Chester Goodson and Rick Jones.

Mondt said he would try to retain the scholarships of the boycotting players as long as they wished to remain in school.

Track Coach Hugh Hackett dismissed seven boycotting black track and field athletes from his team Saturday afternoon.

They are sprinter Walter Henderson, quarter-mile Michael Solomon, long jumpers Tom Kent and Robert Nance, quarter-milers Fred James and Elliott Skinner and hurdler Melvin Powers.

Hackett dismissed the track athletes after the Lobos dropped a 91-67 decision to Arizona.

Harold Bailey, assistant director of Afro-American studies at UNM and spokesman for the boycotting athletes, said, "The action taken by the black athletes should not be interpreted as a stand of militancy."

ASSOCIATED PRESS

TO (AP) — Larry Paul Warfield and Jim Csonka, the Miami Dolphins' grind-it-out have jumped for the $3.5 million to the other 10 Northern of the football League, giving the Dolphins almost respectability.

Warfield said Kikie after the 1973 season, for three years, closed Sunday. "If we don't do it, we'll get off the ground, we'll be a trio—Warfield is a back, the other two backs—will play out 1974 options with the Dolphins then join with two National Football championships.

Coach Shula said he might not play the three this season. But Csonka said he might not play the three this season. But Csonka said he might not play the three this season. But Csonka said he might not play the three this season.

the extra money—$15,000 each in the Super Bowl—for payoff victories.

No breakdown on how the $3.5 million would be divided among the three was disclosed. Presumably, Csonka would get the most money.

Kick said the other 11 teams in the NFL, which will begin play in July, contributed $1 million to the contracts, highest-priced deals ever in pro football history.

Dolphins shocked "I am disappointed, shocked, sick, whatever... a bitter Joe Robbie, managing general partner of the Dolphins, said in Miami Sunday night after the jump was announced in Toronto. "I feel player agent Ed Keating took three of our players to Canada who were in a frame of mind to come back and listen when they left."

But Robbie said the Dolphins weren't concerned about any legal action "at this point."

Csonka, who rushed for more than 1,000 yards the past three seasons, said his financial future was a primary consideration in the move.

"In this case, it is one of the considerations, of course," the bull-necked fullback said, "but there are others... the Toronto club offered us more than we anticipated—even more than we had asked for in the exploratory package."

Toronto bargain Robbie said he has asked Keating to return with the players from Toronto, where negotiating sessions took place, adding that the "$3.5 million wouldn't burn in two days."

But, Robbie said Keating responded with a "take it or leave it" attitude and the Dolphins official refused to negotiate by phone. "Everyone knows how I feel about them," Shula said. "They are great players. We were in a unique situation of being able to go after our third Super Bowl in a row next season. Our thought was to do everything possible to get everyone back."

Warfield, like Csonka, 240-pounder, is a six-year NFL played a part in his decision.

Pride factor Kick, who lost his starting position to Mercury Morris in 1972, also said pride was a factor in his decision to sign with Toronto.

"I have a lot of pride and I want to play a lot of football," he said. "I feel I can contribute to any football team. That is one of the big reasons."

The contracts were for "well in excess of $3 million," Keating said. "I hope this introduces a new concept in owner-player relationships."

Robbie said Keating asked the Dolphins to match a Toronto offer of $3.5 million—$3 million to be deposited in advance in a bank account, and a guaranteed three-year, no-cut, no-trade contract.

Donald Johnson cited his shoelessness as one of several grievances alleged in a $400 damage suit filed against Penitentiary Superintendent B.J. Rhay.

Johnson says he doesn't have enough money to buy special shoes and the prison doesn't have any.

Y golfers win play.

After two victories in California, the BYU golf team returns to Provo this week to take on the University of Utah today at the Riverside Country Club. They will take to the road again Wednesday to participate in the Fresno Classic and the Western Intercollegiate Tournament.

"I think it's safe to say we've got a good team to win against the U," says Head Coach Karl Tucker. "We won't be playing our front liners, but we'll be ready to play."

The Cougars will be in Fresno April 5-6 for the Fresno Classic; the team has taken the title two of the past three years and was runner-up in 1973.

According to Tucker, the Fresno field will be "excellent."

"Five of the top teams in the nation will be there, he said.

Santa Cruz, Calif. will be the site of the Western Intercollegiate Tournament April 10-12. BYU has placed first in three of the past five years.

"Golf World" tabbed "the Bible of golf" by Tucker, rated BYU eighth in the nation this week and he hopes to continue the upward trend.

"I'm really optimistic about this year," he said. "I know this is a big cliché in sports, but if we can put it all together and get the type of performances we're capable of producing, this will be a banner year."

He pointed out that

"consistency is what wins college golf. You have to have good, steady players and one or two guys that are going really good."

Commenting on the predominance of away matches in the team's schedule, Tucker stated "we could stay in our own backyard and win every match, but when we go outside the state against good schools, we really have to put ourselves out."

"We're always on somebody else's home course and that's where it really counts," he said.

The tournaments are where the barometers are," he continued. "When you get in a tournament with other good teams, you can really find out where you're at by the way you finish."

Tucker said that the team will be working all spring for the WAC Championships to be held May 10 and 11 in Albuquerque, New Mexico.

"We're getting ready to play and win in the WAC," he said. "In competition in California last month, the Cougars defeated College of the Desert in Palm Springs 30-5 and Pauma Valley 34-34 and 74-14."

The Cougars also participated in the Aztec Intercollegiate Tournament in San Diego last week. The squad placed sixth with a total score of 893. Low scorer for BYU was James Blair with 222, six strokes behind the leader.

Jerry Pimm, 36, University of Utah basketball assistant for 13 years, was named Utah head coach Saturday to replace Bill Foster.

USC tankers drown Indiana

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — A second college dynasty has crumbled — by the narrowest of margins. Six-time defending champion Indiana has lost the NCAA swimming title to Southern California, 339-338, little more than a week after North Carolina State topped UCLA's perennial defending basketball champions from the throne, 80-77. "Well, somebody had to do it and it might as well be us," said a controlled Southern Cal swim coach Peter Daland afterwards. "I don't get nervous. I'm a professional. Of course I'm very happy for the kids."

Daland's team was a little more enthusiastic. "I am screaming and Daland around the Plaza pool after the ended Saturday. "I'm glad we won can enjoy my record freshman John Nab had set an American 1:45.5 in the backstroke.

Y students participate in service

By CINDY DOMMER
Universe Staff Writer

Eleven groups, including about 350 BYU students participating in service projects, last weekend painted, cleaned, raked and dug in the Utah County area, according to Kirk Rector, ASBYU vice president of community services.

The BYU 71st Branch worked through Franciscan Brother Anthony of the St. Francis of Assisi Catholic Church in Provo to do cleanup, renovation, maintenance, painting and yardwork on the home of Kathy Haines of Pleasant Grove. About 75 people participated, said Rector.

Several homes in Cedar Fort, Utah, were cleaned, painted, and had yardwork done by about 50 members of the BYU 39th Branch, according to Rector.

A group of about 75 headed by Randy Sayer cleaned and worked on the grounds of the old Ward Island chapel at 100 North and 500 West near Center Street.

BYU 45th Branch members worked on the home of Mrs. B.V. Morgan, a Provo widow with a son on a mission. The members painted the outside of the house, raked the yard, cleaned and softened the flower beds, cleaned the inside of the house and trimmed two large trees in the yard.

Two local paint contractors, Jesse E. Murrott and Costello Brothers, provided paint for the project.

ASBYU Student Community Services participated in the projects by providing tools from the shed, said Rector. Ninety-one rakes and 80 shovels, plus a number of hoes, pruners, hedge clippers, electric chain saws, ladders, buckets, scrapers, trash cans, picks and pitchforks were provided by the office, Rector said.

The home of Mrs. B.V. Morgan of Provo was painted by BYU 45th Branch members Saturday morning.

A group of about 25 students headed by Bill Stubler visited three homes of senior citizens in Orem, he added.

The BYU Sixth Branch cleaned the yard of one of the counselors to their branch president for planting, said

Rector. Other groups who did projects were the BYU 43rd Branch elders quorum, the 53rd Branch, a group headed by Curt Wilbur and the 13th Branch.

Trucker chief wants stiff fines

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — An official of a truckers' organization, who says trucks generally obey Utah's 55-mile-per-hour speed limit, proposed Friday that speeding fines be doubled during the period of reduced speed limits.

Otis E. Winn, managing director of the Utah Motor Transport Association, said in a letter to Gov. Calvin L. Rampton the group "fully supports" the governor's announced crackdown on speeding trucks and other vehicles.

Winn said the majority of trucks exceeding the speed limit are "owner-operators and a few private carriers," such as trucks driven for grocery store chains.

He said many judges levy fines of $10-15 for speeding, and drivers have little incentive to reduce their speed.

"I have recommended that during the period of reduced speed, fines for violation should be increased substantially,"

BYU Army ROTC

New program offered

By DAVID S. LUMAN
Universe Staff Writer

The BYU Army ROTC program has a new academic program that gives students at BYU a unique opportunity, according to Col. Bartley E. Day of the Army ROTC.

The Army ROTC Two-Year Program offers college sophomores opportunities in their junior and senior years for:

- $100 a month for up to 10 months of each school year.
- a chance to compete for scholarships paying the full cost of tuition, textbooks, laboratory fees, and other educational expenses.
- the possibility of an all tuition-paid advanced degree fellowship after graduation.
- an opportunity to learn to fly — free of charge.
- the choice of not one, but two, careers after graduation.

Accepting applications

"Applications for the Two-Year Program will be accepted from now through May 1," Col. Day said. "The program is designed to permit college sophomores, juniors, and seniors who have four semesters remaining to enroll in the Military Science Program, provided:

- They meet the Army's physical and mental standards.
- They successfully complete a six-week Basic Camp this summer at Fort Knox, Ky., for which they'll be paid about $450." Veterans of prior military service are exempt from attending this camp.

Col. Day said that all cadets in their junior and senior years receive a subsistence allowance of $100 a month for up to 10 months of each of these school years.

"That can add up to $2,000 for the two-year period — or about one-sixth of the $12,000 estimated as the current average cost of four years of higher education across the country," Col. Day said.

Scholarships offered

"College sophomores in the Two-Year Program also may apply for Army ROTC two year scholarships which pay the full cost of tuition, textbooks, lab fees, and other educational expenses," he said.

"The awards are made strictly on merit — on such factors as the applicant's academic achievement, leadership potential, and character and personality," Col. Day said.

"If college sophomores enter the program and excel at Army ROTC during their junior and senior years, they may be designated 'Distinguished Military Graduates (DMGs)'. When they complete their college education, they receive their diplomas and are commissioned 2nd Lieutenants in the Army," he said.

"The DMGs are eligible to apply and compete for two years of advanced degree study — in a subject for which the Army has need — with all expenses paid by the Army to include pay and allowances totalling $790.30 per month if married," Col. Day noted.

Flight training

"Two-Year Program students also may be eligible for Army ROTC's Flight Training Program," he said. "Under this plan, Army ROTC cadets, usually in their senior years, learn to fly and earn private pilots' licenses at a private flying school at the Provo airport on their own time."

"All expenses incurred by the cadets for the flight instruction, including tuition, textbooks, navigational aids, and flight clothing are paid for by the Army. In return, the cadets agree to enter Army Aviation, at the Army's option, following their graduation and commissioning," Col. Day said.

Col. Day said that in addition to financial benefits during the college years, the Two-Year Army ROTC program offers many other advantages worthy of serious consideration by college sophomores.

"Our program offers courses unique not only at BYU, but across the country," he said. "It is the only course of study at any institution of higher education which teaches leadership specifically."

Courses challenging

"Our courses challenge young men to lead and activate their peers at a much earlier age than most of their contemporaries. The program develops their self-confidence, their will to succeed, their self-understanding, and provides them with a background that positions them ahead of their peers in the career competition they'll face after college. This headstart serves them well whether they decide to make their careers in the Army or in civilian life after they fulfill their military obligations," he said.

Apartment vacancies filling fast

Local apartment owners report vacancies for spring, summer and fall terms are filling fast and rents will be increased in some cases by $1 to $7.

A Daily Universe survey found some vacancies in even the larger apartment complexes. However, three apartments reported no openings for any of the three terms and 12 complexes were filled for fall but had openings for spring and/or summer.

Rents for spring, summer and fall will not rise in at least five apartments, but will rise in many others from $1 to $7 due to increases in utility costs and the general rise in cost of living, explained some of the managers.

With rental rates ranging from $20 to $65 for spring and summer, and from $33 to $50 for fall, students are offered a wide choice.

Twenty-five apartment complexes plan to charge between $20 and $30 for spring and summer while 25 others list their rent between $36 and $65.

In the fall rental rates for twelve apartments will be between $33 and $45 while 34 plan to charge from $46 to $80.

BYU researchers to develop economic plan to aid Navajo

An economic plan to help the 130,000-member Navajo Reservation in the Southwest's vast Four Corners region become more self-sufficient will be developed by BYU researchers in a series of studies recently commissioned by the Navajo Tribal Council.

The goal of the project is to increase employment by 5,000 on the reservation in Arizona, New Mexico, and Utah and boost income for those now employed in the area's Indian arts and crafts trades.

Dr. Robert Parsons, director of the BYU Survey Research Center, and Martin Wistisen, director of the BYU Center for Business and Economic Research, are principal investigators of the program.

"There is some industry already on the reservation — such as tourism, livestock and production of coal and natural gas," said Dr. Parsons. He explained that six surveys will be conducted beginning in May to identify consumer products produced and purchased on the reservation and in nearby communities.

Based on the survey data collected, the BYU Center for Business and Economic Research will identify 15 businesses and industries which feasibly could be developed and operated on the reservation by Indians.

"A major problem we are facing is the vast territory involved in the study area and the limited knowledge of households on the reservation," Dr. Parsons added. "There has never been an accurate map of homes located in remote regions on the reservation."

One thousand households will be contacted and interviewed during the survey, as well as an accurate accounting of industries, retailers, institutions and wholesalers who conduct business on the reservation.

Grants available

Each semester the Indian Education Department awards several tuition grants to Lamanite students. These awards are given from monies contributed by outside sources, said John R. Maestas, chairman of the Indian Education Department.

He said there are several awards available for both spring and summer terms. All interested Lamanite students should contact Larry Gnetling in the Indian Education Department, 130 BRMB.

Industries which will be considered and examined for possible development on the reservation will include meat packing, clothing manufacturing, food processing, and service industries.

Interviewers who participate in the surveys will all be fluent in Navajo and will spend several weeks traveling in the sparingly populated area collecting information.

"We will also interview Navajo shoppers who follow the reservation to shopping areas, such as Farmington, N.M., Flagstaff and Page, Ariz., to determine what products and facilities they lack at home," said Dr. Parsons.

All in a summer-wonderful

Spring-Summer wedding

As spring fills the air and summer breathes fragrantly around the corner, many couples will take one of the biggest steps in their lives — marriage.

It is believed by many experts that one of the prettiest times for a couple to celebrate a wedding is in the summer. The grass is green, flowers are in bloom and everything seems alive with the radiance of love, happiness and unity.

In the picture to the left, Mary Raun and Kim Purnbaugh gaze at each other in a lovely southern style setting. Spring highlights their plans as it can many receptions.

Even though the marriage preparation is generally a happy time there are many confusing problems the couple must conquer, especially in the ways of reception plans and selection of future valuables.

Many Provo and Salt Lake City merchants wanted to make choosing a little easier for the couple and have given a brief summary in this section of items their store offers the bride and groom.

Those contributing in the way of women's apparel are Juliettes, Nannette of New York, Geraldine's, and Fashion Fabrics. For men's apparel we have Devey's, Levens, Wearhouse, and Enterprise contributing.

In the way of Jewelry and china sets, Chez Marquise, Bullock &

Losee, Charles Anthony, Jewelry, Chalmers, Heindelmann's, Things Be Norma's China Closet, of their selections of goods.

Perma-Graphics, Insta-Pr. Melaynes offer printing services. Jerry Miller Studio and Co. Leigh, explain their photo ideas, and Reception Crystal Room Bungalow, their businesses to couple receptions.

Winterton's, Jack I. Appliance, Randall's shoe Unique Boutique offer their for gift and appliance services and Pedal Pusher proudly of their floral services.

We appreciate the Guest by Reed Bradford.

Our love will grow with no end

By REED H. BRADFORD

In the beginning two cells unite. Later a child is born. Later, if the fire is not quenched, the child becomes a Child of God into whose hands all things are given, "whether life or death, or things present, or things to come."

In the beginning two souls unite. Later, if the Fire of Divine Love is fed, the marriage brings Peace, Joy, and Fulfillment.

But it is a continuing Quest. It is a Divine Dialogue whose elements are five and they provide the opportunity for finding the Peace, Joy, and Fulfillment.

Ends of Being. Marriage has several purposes: bringing His children into the world; finding satisfaction of intellectual, emotional, physical, social, and spiritual needs. But each of the marriage partners must ask the question: "Am I using my experience, knowledge, patience, wisdom and inspiration to help myself, my mate and my children become like Him?"

The best Model one can use is His Oldest Son. Asking one's self the question: "How would He behave were He in my position or situation?" will cause one to study His characteristics and principles. One will seek to be worthy of His Inspiration.

The Sensitive Line. Being aware that every individual is a Child of a Divine Parent, causes one to be spiritually sensitive to others. One would not consciously be offensive to them or hurt their feelings. Such behavior represents a "crossing of the sensitive line" which exists in the relationship one person has with another.

Infliction of pain, physical or otherwise, shouting, using sarcasm, failing to listen creatively when a person speaks, or being tolerant of the individual's views are examples of crossing the sensitive line. Everyone makes mistakes, — sometimes unknowingly. Asking forgiveness and honestly trying not to repeat the mistake will restore the sensitive nature of the relationship.

Thus marriage partners can be honest with another. If there is something in the relationship that needs improvement, it can be discussed. Each knows that motive is not to embarrass or punish, but to be helpful and positive. The discussions are held at the most favorable times when the parties are not tired or emotionally upset.

Empathy plays a major role in the relationship. Each partner consciously tries to place himself in the situation of the other person and gain an understanding of that person's feelings and problems.

Consensus

He said: "If you are not one, you are not mine." He further said that decisions should be made by a "unanimous voice," that is, "every member must be agreed" to the decision. If both the husband and the wife as well as the children study His principles and seek to live them, everyone will have a common base for making decisions. The principles become the guidelines in this process.

There is also another aid for reaching an agreement in making decisions. The individuals can present them to Him for His approval or non-approval. Study it out in your mind; then you must ask Me if it is right, and if it is right I will cause that your bosom shall burn within you; therefore, you shall feel that it is right. But if it is not right you shall have no such feelings. . . . This "burning" is a total impression and involves intellectual, emotional, and spiritual elements.

Thus each individual is given the right to give honest expression to his views. Yet the general aim is to reach a decision that everyone can honestly support. The husband and father, who holds the Priesthood guides this process.

The Big Picture

There are two elements in this concept. First one must consider how his behavior will affect him, not just for the next few minutes, weeks or months, but how it will affect him eternally. As a girl who gave birth to an illegitimate child said: "I wish I had known five minutes before I committed adultery how I would feel five minutes after I gave my child away."

Secondly one must reflect deeply on how his behavior is affecting others. Two dedicated members of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints were killed on the same day. Today one of them has five descendants who are members of the Church. The other one has over six hundred. One of the factors involved in these results is the decision made by the wife of each man. The wife of the first man subsequently married a non-member of the Church. She now has over three hundred descendants who are members of another church. The wife of the second man remained loyal to The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints and taught all her children its principles.

The Spirit

The Spirit of the Relationship. The interaction of individuals engaged in this kind of Divine Dialogue is characterized by kindness, understanding, temperance, patience and wisdom. All of these are aspects of Love as He defines it. William Cartwright in describing the nature of such a relationship between a husband and wife said:

There are two births; the one when light

First strikes the new awaker's sense;

The other when two souls unite, And we must count our life from thence:

When you loved me and I loved you

Then both of us were born anew.

Love then to use new souls did give

And in those souls did plant new powers;

Since when another life we live, The breath we breathe is his, (and ours);

Love makes those young whom age doth chill,

And whom he finds young keeps young still."

Section Photos by Mark Phillips

As the flower starts with a bud, begins to bloom and then radiates blossoms, so does marriage. Dr. Reed Bradford believes a marriage can grow as perfect as a rose, if the prescriptions given in his article are used.

Couples show wedding trends

Kim, Mary, Ed, Linda, Robert and Carol stroll through stores in both Salt Lake and Provo looking over wedding items they would enjoy using the rest of their lives. Here is a brief story on each couple before they take you into wedding items.

*Kim
Mary*

After dating seven years, Kim Purbaugh, a BYU law student and Mary Raun, a BYU graduate, decided to take the big step and get married, but not before an exciting courtship had been completed.

Mary had no idea when she would receive her diamond, but hoped it would be Valentine's Day. Kim asked her for lunch that day and indicated he was going to give her something special.

"Something special" to Mary's disappointment was a cookbook, however, that night he surprised her with a diamond ring.

Kim loves Mary's good home cooking, and Mary says that she loves Kim to take her on drives when the weather is nice.

Mary and Kim joined the Church on the same day. Kim was baptized first and ordained a priest afterwards. Then he baptized Mary.

They have set their wedding date for May 10 with a small reception in mind.

*Ed
Linda*

Before Linda Jensen becomes Ed Prescott's wife, she will have first been his mother.

Linda was Ed's family mother two years ago, but after her term in this position she and Ed started dating and eventually became engaged.

Linda is a Home Economics Major from San Bernardino, Calif. and Ed is an Animal Science major from Jerome, Idaho. After they are married they plan to live in Idaho on a cattle ranch.

Linda says there is one problem with this—she's afraid of cows.

Ed and Linda enjoy traveling together especially on skiing trips and have visited the states of Oregon, California and Idaho.

They plan an April 26th wedding in Oakland and Linda has chosen her reception colors as Baby blue and white.

*Robert
Carol*

The 4th of July, usually holds remembrance of one's country but for Carol Chapman and Robert Ingebreten, it holds the memory of meeting the one they were to spend eternity with.

Carol and Rob met at a square dance on the 4th but only talked for about two minutes. The next Sunday Carol visited a branch in Salt Lake City and saw that Rob was a member.

She and Rob talked about the Branch and she decided to become a member of Rob's family home evening group. Two weeks later, after a Manti Temple pageant, they became engaged.

They plan to be married May 1 and according to Carol, their engagement started Aug. 30 and has been much too long.

Their relationship has been full of fun times, Carol says and sites one experience that happened recently. Their wedding announcement listed Rob as a football star and physical education major at the University of Utah, instead of his true self, a graduate student in physics at BYU.

Today's bride enjoys femininity

"Today's young woman is certainly not ready to relinquish her femininity," say the people at Juliette's, an intimate apparel shop in the Fashion Place Mall, Murray, Utah. "But even though today's bride-to-be is still romantic, she's practical and budget-minded. Maybe even more so than her mother."

Today's woman might be planning to become a doctor or a disc jockey. But she's still not ready to give up on lacy lingerie and frilly nightwear. It's just that the emphasis has changed to lovely things that launder easily and are reasonably priced.

"The girls we see at Juliette's are often interested in owning two or three pretty nightgowns with perhaps a color-coordinated 'coat' to wear over any one of them. We've also noticed a change to simple elegance. Too much fussiness is out."

Even though a girl is at home in jeans or a pantsuit, she still looks for feminine appeal in a hostess gown, still wants romantic styling in nightwear.

"Juliette's believes in romance on a budget," says the vivacious buyer, who tries to keep a wide selection of styles on hand. "Since we're a specialty shop, girls come to us because we can stock more variety than most department stores," she says.

Juliette's believes in equality. Despite the plush lavender rugs and the crystal chandelier, gift-hunting males feel at home there, too.

It's nice to know femininity is still in style.

The cherished moments of your wedding will never fade, if you choose Cowan & Leigh, 450 North University Ave. to do your photography.

Dream of the place you would most like your engagement photograph taken. Then tell John Cowan or Mike Leigh and they will help create the photograph you have always wanted. For instance, one young bride came into their shop telling them she wanted old fashioned wedding photographs taken. Well Cowan & Leigh knew of an old Model T Ford and took a picture of the couple and car in a beautiful setting in the Alpine Canyon.

They also do atmosphere photography, such as candlelight touches and soft highlighting. "Mike and I work really well together, it's really great working with someone like him. We both just dig our work," says John Cowan, a sandy-brown haired BYU graduate.

The pair are also proud of their prices. They feel that for the quality work they produce that their prices are very reasonable and competitive.

Remember your wedding the way it was, with the creative photography of Cowan and Leigh.

CHARLES

A major reason Charles Anthony is in the diamond business in Provo, is for the fun of it!

They know what an exciting and enjoyable time the couple is going through when they are engaged and selecting a ring, and they love being a part of it. Such as, last weekend they took a couple for a hot-air balloon ride, just because the couple chose Charles Anthony to purchase their ring from.

Charles Anthony has a more unique feature for getting involved in the engagement than the balloon ride. They have a master craftsman who will design any style of ring a couple desires.

Charles Anthony enjoys sitting down with the couple and discussing the various aspects of the ring they would like to have.

The couple is then usually permitted to talk with the master craftsman—Ben Stolp, who carves and sets the ring in a wax ingot.

The couple can come in, discuss if the ring is what they wanted, and then have the order completed on it. Stolp, a native from Denmark is nationally famous for his diamond settings and loves being a part of Charles Anthony. He has made rings for people like Shirley Temple, Zsa Zsa Gabor and Charles Boyer.

Come in to Charles Anthony. Tell them your ring idea and let them help make it a reality. After all "we care more about the couple and their ring, than we do ourselves," says Bruce Wolsey, a manager of Charles Anthony. Share your engagement with Charles Anthony at 450 North University Avenue.

What's important in a mate?

Whether we learn the fine art of living together, depends a great deal upon the person we expect to live with. However, there are several questions a person can ask himself on qualities in a mate.

Here are a list of questions you can ask yourself to learn your priorities in terms of qualities in a person. To the side of each question is a line where you should record the points you award for this characteristic. You are given 100 points to work with.

Is this person healthy? _____
Are they cheerful? _____
Is this person unselfish? _____
Do they have good heredity? _____

Are they educated and refined? _____

Is this person sexually moral? _____

Is he honest? _____
Did he have good home training? _____

Is he religious? _____
Does this person have good preparation? _____
Does he have a brilliant mind? _____

Does he love children? _____

After studying and evaluating what these qualities in a person mean to you, maybe you can give yourself the test to see what type of person would be interested in you.

Recipe for a good luck wish

One of the highlights in the course of the wedding festivities is throwing rice at the newlyweds. The Rice Council of America have come up with the following recipes for "good luck rice", to live up a tradition.

Scented Tinted Rice

1 Cup water
½ to 1 teaspoon food coloring
Dash of perfume or cologne
2-1/3 cups 91 lb) uncooked rice

Mix water with food coloring in a one-quart glass or metal bowl. Stir in perfume. Then add rice. Let stand about five minutes or until rice is a shade darker than desired color. (Color will lighten as rice dries.) Drain, reserving colored water for next batch. Then spread rice in the bottom of a jelly roll pan or another baking pan. Place in preheated 250 degree oven for 15 minutes, stirring occasionally during drying. Remove from oven and pour rice onto paper towels. Let stand, uncovered, overnight to allow to dry thoroughly. Makes 36 tablespoons tinted rice, or enough for 18 to 36 rice souvenir bags. Repeat this process for each new color desired. Types of rice to use for tinting: regular milled white rice for pastel shades and parboiled rice for darker shades. Precooked rice is not recommended.

Rice Souvenir Bags

To make rice souvenir bags, you'll need:

Scented Tinted Rice
Sheer, close weave fabric
Ribbon or cord

First, tint and thoroughly dry and cool the rice. Cut the fabric into five-inch lengths. Place one tablespoon of rice in the center of fabric squares. Bring the four corners of the fabric together and tie with ribbon.

Apparel with appeal

Over the years wedding clothing has changed, probably as much as have grooms. And the unbendable rules of what to wear at your wedding are being changed by designers and couples alike, who would like the groom to be as much the center of attention as the bride.

Time was when the average groom would wear a black tuxedo, or if he was being a little more informal, a white dinner jacket.

Well styles have changed, as you can see in the two pictures on this page. Kim Purbrough models, the summer tuxedo that many grooms will be wearing at their spring or summer wedding receptions.

Rob on the right looks over two styles of tuxedos, that he would consider wearing at his wedding. One a fitted more formal tux as opposed to the less formal one his consultant is holding.

Now, the groom has a style of tuxedo he can wear for the style of wedding the bride has chosen; such as formal, semi-formal and informal for both morning and evening.

At a formal wedding the groom may wear an Edwardian coat, striped flare pants, and a cutaway shirt, with a wing collar and no vest. Or the traditional cutaway coat, striped trousers, gray waistcoat, with a white pleated-bosom shirt. Accessories to go along with this attire would be a tie, black hose, black calf shoes, white boutonniere; gray doeskin gloves. And to match with the Edwardian coat he could select an ascot striped tie, stick pin, black hose and black calf shoes.

For semi-formal evening wear the groom can choose a brown or gray tuxedo, black or midnight-blue dinner jacket, or if the season is summer, a pastel or white brocade dinner jacket would be appropriate. He would also wear a cummerbund, square-end bow tie to match, pleated-bosom shirt, black patent kid shoes, and black hose.

For the informal wedding, morning or evening, the groom could wear a dark gray or navy business suit, with a white shirt, subdued tie and hose, along with gray suede gloves. For a summer or spring reception, a white, natural-colored jacket, or a white suit would look great.

But whatever attire the groom decides to go with, he knows that now he can be every bit as stunning as the bride.

Devey's

Everyone knows the bride will look great on the wedding day, but what about her groom?

Brands such as Lord West and After Six, can be rented, professionally fitted and tailored to meet the needs of any body-size, anywhere from $7-$15 per use.

Devey's suggests that the bride come with her groom to pick out his tuxedo so his tux will be color coordinated with the rest of the wedding.

And for those after the wedding needs, Devey's has excellent brands for the men to choose their wardrobe from, names such as Cricketer, Michaels Stern, and Graham & Gunn to only name a few.

For a sample of the formal wear Devey's produces, look at the front cover, the male model is wearing a tux from Devey's.

Advice and knowledge

Chalmere Diamonds

When a couple goes into a store to browse at diamond rings, they rarely expect the owner to give them advice and knowledge on picking a diamond ring by its quality.

But that's exactly the help a couple receives when they enter Chalmere Diamonds at 58 North University Avenue. The owner Frank Davis, a 27 year old BYU graduate, will sit down with each couple and explain to them the quality variances of the diamond they are selecting.

Frank has graduated from the Gemological Institute of America with top honors, but his learning doesn't end there. He is consistently keeping himself abreast of findings in the diamond science as well as testing himself for accuracy with the Gemological Institute.

At Chalmere there is as low of markup as could be possible. Frank grades and appraises his own diamonds, therefore, leaving out the cost that usually goes to an appraiser.

Frank is a certified diamond appraiser and this knowledge has been helpful in terms of his buying. Frank grades and compares each stone that he receives from the different cutting firms to make sure he is getting the best stone for the best price.

So students can find many reasons to choose Chalmere diamonds, not just because of price and quality but because of the benefits to the talents and knowledge the owner Frank Davis, offers them.

The garden reception

With the mild temperature of spring around the corner and the mugginess of summer close behind, it may be a good idea for the Spring or summer bride to hold her wedding reception in the out of doors.

This idea lends itself to hours of creativity, dealing with topics as to where the reception will be held to what atmosphere will my line create.

Usually an outdoors reception is held at the home of the bride. But once the decision is made to have a garden reception, your gardener or florist should be called on the scene to survey the prospects of the already existing foliage, and prescribe other plants that would make the backyard an appropriate place for a reception.

Next, the bride should choose the style of dress and accessories she and her bridesmaids will wear. Instead of veils, the garden bride and her attendants might wish to wind flowers in their hair, and carry parasols or baskets containing flowers.

There are other important aspects for a garden wedding the bride should be aware of such as catering in the out of doors, and lighting.

Menu possibilities for this type of reception can be exciting as well as extensive. The bride can use such seasonal tools as fruits and vegetables, and color coordinating them with the punch and cake.

Lighting for the reception can become an asset, especially if it is used to its best advantage, such as using the color of lights that goes along with the color scheme of the reception.

A garden reception can be filled with many relaxed and pleasant memories, just remember one tip—watch out for the bugs.

Geraldine's Bridal Creations

all the choices and selections made prior to the wedding ceremony, other than the companion, there is probably more important than the selection of the wedding gown.

the bride prepares this very personal part of her wedding arrangements, she must take care to choose a gown that will enhance her rather than overpower her natural charms.

helping the bride to find this dress, is Geraldine's located in the Continental Plaza.

Geraldine's will design a dress for the girl according to the personality of the young woman and in the style of wedding the dress has chosen.

the girl can even have in mind a style of wedding dress she would like and with this idea she and Geraldine's manager, can design and reproduce the wedding dress of her dreams.

many times LDS brides would like to use their wedding dresses for temple dresses after the wedding, but find them too decorative or impractical.

Geraldine's has the perfect solution! They can design a temple dress with an overdress.

The overdress can be made of lace or any other material the bride desires, and it will follow the same pattern structure as the temple dress.

This overdress is placed on top of the temple dress for the wedding and can be easily removed when the bride wishes to wear this dress for the temple.

La Unique Boutique, what would a young bride think of when she hears the name of this store. Probably a small specialty store featuring unique items, and that's exactly what it is.

Mrs. Bird, along with her daughter opened the boutique on 250 West Center in December and has been continually trying to expand its inventory in their store.

Items like belts—belts made of everything you can imagine including Cobra skin and Buffalo hide. These belts are often topped off with a copper or silver buckle. ### Melayne's wedding invitations

Largest selection in the nation

A wedding made in heaven should be announced on the best invitation on earth. And where will you find this type of invitation? — at Melaynes, 147 North University Ave.

Melaynes believes they have the widest selection of announcements in the nation. But they don't just stick to these announcements. According to Mrs. Barbara Smith, they enjoy working with the girls, to help them find an invitation which best describes the couple.

Melaynes is locally owned and operated but it doesn't just cater to the beehive state.

"We get mail orders from every state in the union, Canada and several foreign countries," says Mrs. Smith.

Melaynes loves being in the Wedding Invitation business, and is constantly seeking ways to improve it. Such as 10 years ago Melaynes invented the idea of putting a picture on an invitation. Currently they are copywriting their pictures of the newly built temples, which go on their invitations.

Often a girl will ask, "What is the average amount of invitations to buy." Well Melaynes has printed anywhere from one invitation to 2,500.

Mrs. Smith explains that the case where only one invitation was printed, was when a young man invited his girlfriend to the temple with him, to be married for all eternity.

And maybe you're wondering how they got their name. Mr. Atkinson, the owner of the store, began his business with his son Wayne. His first name was Melvin so they combined the two names and came up with Melaynes.

Come on in and see what you can put together in the way of wedding announcements at Melaynes.

Couples discuss their marriages

The following questions were asked to couples who had been married one year or longer, to help give the future marriage partners an idea of problems they may be facing and ways they were solved by these couples. Kile and Jeanne Thomas, Spencer and Cindy Fox, Kirk and Jennifer Rector:

Q. What type of living accommodations would you recommend for newly married couples?

Jeanne: We found an old home that was quite cheap for our first living arrangement. But we found we didn't really save that much, because something was wrong with the heater, and we had to pay a high heating bill.

A hard adjustment to marriage is just being alone. And in our first home we were really alone. We were used to being with a lot of friends every night, and it was quite an adjustment when it was only the two of us.

Jennifer: We started out in an apartment, but we're in a home now. It may be more expensive but I think it's really worth it. I have more closet and cupboard space, besides better outside lighting. I'm trying to make a home and it seemed almost impossible to make one in an apartment.

Q. Did you have any in-law problems?

Kirk: I had problems adjusting to my father-in-law. We both had different value systems, such as in spending time. He had to understand how I spent my time and why.

Kile: I didn't have any in-law problems. We all got along very well with each other right from the first.

Cindy: I did have some in-law problems at the first of our marriage, and it took about two months to straighten them out. We both just had to try to understand each other more, because her son belonged to both of us now.

Q. Is budgeting ever a problem?

Jennifer: I was a super budgeter when we were married and he had never had to budget before. I had to be super patient and work with him, and it seems like we're getting better and better with our finances.

Kile: We both do well budgeting, the only problem is the too often we spend what we have. Now they are taking a portion out of my check for savings and I think this is working quite well.

Q. What was your first year of marriage like?

Jeanne: The first year was really rough. I think that too often couples go into marriage with the idea that we'll go to the temple and everything will be great. Well, it's not that way. Things can really bug you about the other person. And if you have problems like these you have to work them out, and you have to work them out together.

Spencer: Our first year of marriage, now that I look back on it, was a little rough, but at the time it really didn't seem that bad. If we had problems we discussed them and worked them out together.

Little flowers in big business

Ever wonder where those carnations in the BYU Cafeteria and the Wilkinson Center Skyroom come from?

From the converted home of Ray Meservy and his wife Michele, owners and managers of the Petal Pushers, a small intimate shop located at 42 E. 300 N., de-emphasizing the big business atmosphere and catering to the needs of the individual (even those who call for a full wedding reception).

Both full-time students going to BYU, Ray and Michele started the Petal Pushers because they had worked with flowers and felt there was a need for the type of service they could offer here in Provo. Thus, they converted their house with sunny-shop windows into living quarters for a business.

They do all the work themselves, custom-making whatever the bride wants and priding themselves in their flexibility and willingness to work closely with the wedding couple to fulfill their needs.

They service mostly the local area, but have supplied flowers for weddings in Idaho and California by special arrangement.

In addition to supplying carnations for the BYU Cafeteria and the Skyroom, they have also arranged the flowers for the ROTC dances and other clubs. Incidentally, they feel they acquired most of these business because of their lower prices.

Being students themselves, they emphasize quality at student prices and also emphasize their individual concern and care in emergencies which they have taken care of several times in the past. As they say, nobody plans for emergencies, but they can happen.

Create your announcement

It's been decided, they're getting married - But what is the best way to tell friends and relatives of the wedding and reception, a way that expresses both the personalities of the bride and groom.

Probably through wedding invitations designed by the bride and groom and printed at the Wedding Tree.

"We don't have any set styles," says Dave Bastian, of the Wedding Tree. "We let the couple create their own from scratch or other invitations they may have seen."

And after the style of invitation is chosen, the Wedding Tree goes to a printer of trouble to make sure the invitation is the finest quality work a couple could receive.

Besides featuring a wide variety of paper to have announcements printed on, the Wedding Tree can also take care of the photography for announcements.

The Wedding Tree - located on 51 N. University Ave.

P.S. It offers a special bridal coupon book containing 20 bridal merchants for every order.

The ideal wedding breakfast

In the LDS Church, it isn't too uncommon for a bride to be married in the morning and entertain at her reception that evening. But in the meantime there is a very important feature of the celebration - the wedding breakfast.

This breakfast is the only expense incurred to the grooms parents. His parents hold it in honor of the bride and groom and their families uniting.

The breakfast in itself can cost the parents an average of $2.00 to $5.00 per plate. This makes it necessary for the breakfast to be open only to close members of the family.

Some brides use the idea of having the breakfast at the same location the reception will be at that night, for two reasons. They will receive more personalized attention from the reception center, they won't have to travel any more that day.

Something new and different for brides and grooms

What do you give a bride and groom when they will get two of everything? Why not give them their wedding invitation permanently sealed into wood! And years from now when all the other memories of their wedding day have faded, the invitation to their day will be as nice as the day it was printed.

After the wedding, what happens to the marriage license or those once in a lifetime photographs? The license is folded and put away. The photographs are passed around until they are smudged, torn and faded and years from now when they will really mean something they are in no condition to look at. Perma Graphics can prevent this from happening.

We specialize in the preservation and display of anything paper. Awards, degrees, photographs, certificates and other paper items can now be saved from deterioration. Tons of pressure, the finest domestic fabrications and "old world" skill are blended to press your paper into imported wood and seal it with a non-glass, linen texture. And the finished product will beautify any home or office. Think about it. The small cost today will insure your memories for the future.

Tips on diamonds

Remember the days when you'd put your penny in a bubble gum machine and make your biggest wish that you'd get the ring in the with the diamond looking stone?

Well, hopefully, times are past that stage and chances are that no you want a ring with a real diamond on it and not from a gum machine. But before you get that diamond, here are some tips you should know about them.

The engagement and wedding rings are the eternal symbols of couple's love for one another. As far back as the caveman, brides' wrists and ankles were tied with braided rushes to seal the marriage contract before she was dragged away.

At the end of the fifteenth century, man began to discover the priceless of the diamond, and it soon became the most popular stone to place in a ring as a gift to someone you love.

And, of course, the tradition continues today. But today we know more about diamonds than we did then. Important things to look for in a stone, such as color, clarity, cut, and carat weight.

Color in diamonds range from clear or colorless to a distinct yellow or brownish cast. The cut gives the stone its personality and sparkle. Every diamond when fully cut has 58 facets or sides. The proportion of the cut determines the diamond's brilliance. Perfectly cut diamonds will reflect flashes of all the colors of the rainbow.

Bullock & Losee

A store backed by guarantees

A starry eyed couple walks into a store, sees a lovely diamond ring and buys it for an exorbitant amount. But after only one year, the bride notices changes in her stone, and after further investigation she finds that the ring isn't worth one-half of what they paid for it.

To prevent this type of problem, Bullock and Losee, in the University Mall, opens its doors to students, allowing them to browse over the selection of diamonds and read the qualifications and guarantees that go along with them.

Timeless quality

"This is the ring the bride will be wearing the rest of her life, that's why the better the guarantee, the more assured a couple will be of the stone's timeless quality," says Dan Copeland.

The store is run by two students, Brian Harper and Dan Copeland, who both feel they know the needs of the student and can help them find a quality ring, for the amount that best suits them.

Four major lines

Bullock and Losee deals with the four major lines in the United States; Art Carved, Orange Blossom, Keepsake and Columbia and according to Dan, all of these brands are leaders in the United States for quality and guarantee of value.

This store is also a full service jewelry store. For example if a girl is disappointed with the ring she receives, Bullock and Losee will give 100 per cent of purchase on the ring of her choice or other merchandise. Or if for some other reason the student is dissatisfied, Dan says they will make a sincere and honest effort to satisfy the student.

"At times we've lost a lot of money, but I can't help but think it's worth it to gain the students' trust," Dan concludes.
